

Exchange

The Navy Exchange services were varied - gas station, annex, main store, laundry, bakery, auto parts, cafeteria, and ice cream shop.

The transition from Army to Navy and the phase-out created shortages within the system as it did everywhere else on base but the rare bargains offered by the exchange during the final months in stereo equipment, camera gear, household items, clothing and the full spectrum of the store inventory more than compensated for earlier inconveniences.

Savings of 50% and more on the expensive items certainly erased the memories of a lack of toothpaste or of a favorite brand of soap when the shelves began to grow bare.
